Marcum's Attorneys Take Out Habeas Corpus.

They Claim That Violation of Parole Is Not Extraditable Offense.

JUDGE HUSBANDS TO HEAR IT

"Red" Marcum, alias John Holliway, alias "Red" Johnson, who was committed to jail yesterday to await a requisition from Illinois, wants to get out. This morning Attorneys Campbell and Campbell, for the prisoner, took out a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Husbands, and when the requisition arrives there will be a lively legal fight to see whether he shall be taken to Illinois to serve the remainder of his sentence, or liberated.

Marcum is charged with being a fugitive from justice from the state of Illinois, wanted for violating his parole. He was paroled in 1899 at Chester, where he was serving a sentence for larceny.

His attorneys claim that violation of parole is not an extraditable offense and that he cannot be carried from Kentucky to Illinois for it. The commonwealth will claim that a person may be extradited for any offense provided the governor of a state makes a requisition on the governor of another state and it is granted.

By agreement the writ will not be argued before Judge Husbands until after Christmas, by which time it is expected the Illinois officer will be here with a requisition for him. It will be the first case of its kind heard in the local courts, and attorneys are much interested in the outcome.

A FLOATER FOUND

A body of a man was found floating in the river this morning at Livingston Point on the Ohio river side, by a fisherman and brought to the city today at noon.

The body had lodged in a lot of drift and probably had been in the water for weeks, as all the flesh was eaten off the arms from the elbows to the shoulders. The bones of the forearms were gone from the body. The legs of the floater were enclosed in pants and the shoes were still on the feet. Nothing was found in the pockets. The hair and all flesh of the face were gone. There was no way to determine the color but Justice Young, who is acting in the place of Coroner William Peal, who is ill, thinks the man was white, judging from the shape and size of the shoe found on his feet. The body was packed in a wooden box and buried in the potter's field. No inquest was deemed necessary.

ARRESTED ON A BENCH WARRANT.

Otis Blick, white, was arrested this morning by Officers Dugan and Rogers on a bench warrant from Lyon county charging breach of the peace. The marshal of Lyon county had been after them for several days, and after chasing him through Marshall county landed him here and effected his arrest. He left at noon with his man for Eddyville.

The daughter of Mr. Clarence Hamilton of 1230 S. Seventh street is ill of malaria.

Attorney Attempts to Get Him From the County Jail.

Judge Husbands Says There Should Have Been a Jury, But There Was Not One.

IT IS AN IMPORTANT CASE

Pinckney Childers will spend Christmas in jail, after all. He has been a boarder of Jailer Jones for the past several months, serving a twelve months' sentence for selling off a lot of furniture belonging to a man at whose house he had been living. The charge against him was petty larceny, and when County Judge Lightfoot tried him he made an example of Pinckney by giving him the limit, twelve months.

Judge Lightfoot announced soon after going into office that he would make petty thievery a serious thing for the offenders when they came before him, and he has kept his word. He seldom gives them under three months, and has imposed several six month sentences.

Last night Attorney J. S. Ross, for Childers, sued out a writ of habeas corpus in Judge Husbands' court for the purpose of releasing Childers. He claimed that Judge Lightfoot should have tried Childers by jury, and did not do it. On this plea he hoped to free the prisoner.

Judge Husbands decided that Judge Lightfoot should try all persons charged with misdemeanors by jury, and while Childers was not tried by jury, his redress was in an appeal to circuit court, which should have been taken within sixty days and was not. Judge Husbands therefore declined to grant the writ or release Childers, but his decision is of great importance in the city, as it will necessitate all petty larceny cases hereafter tried by the county judge being tried by jury, and is the first time the question has ever been passed on.

The law prescribes that when prisoners charged with misdemeanors do not get a trial in circuit court, the cases may be transferred to the county court for trial before the county judge, and Judge Husbands says this should be by jury.

In most cases tried by Judge Lightfoot, however, the prisoner is held over from police court, and rather than remain in jail for perhaps months, until circuit court convenes, he is allowed to go before the county judge and plead guilty, waiving all rights, among them jury rights.

Judge Lightfoot said today in regard to the cases that the prisoners when he tried them waived jury rights.

Childers, the man who received twelve months for selling four dollars worth of furniture has been pardoned from the penitentiary once, and has been in twice, and was recently refused a pardon for the offense for which he is now doing time. His attorney says he may take out a writ of habeas corpus in another court, presumably federal court.

LOOKING FOR SANTA CLAUS

BOY GOT LOST AND WAS NOT FOUND FOR SEVERAL HOURS.

Forrest Anderson, the little son of Mrs. J. A. Anderson, of Eleventh and Clark streets, slipped away yesterday afternoon late and started down town "to see Santa Claus." He didn't know the way and wandered about quite a great deal until he was found at Fourth and Adams street by a young man who took the little fellow to the court house, where fortunately he found some one who happened to know him and take him home.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

A farmer was arrested this afternoon by Officers Evitts and Johnson for theft, and being drunk and disorderly. He was caught stealing, it is alleged, in the Noah's Ark store on Broadway. He was too drunk to give his name, but a receipt was found on him bearing the name Arthur Storrie.

They do not Like the Idea of no Holiday Tomorrow.

It Is Said They Will Go to School and Then Leave in a Body.

REBUKE TO THE SCHOOL BOARD

A strike of school children is something that has occurred a few times in this country recently, but there was never anything like it in Paducah. The prospects for one tomorrow, however, if reports are true, are good. It has been customary for the school board to give the schools a holiday on Christmas eve, and is claimed by some of the older members that seldom, if ever, did the board refuse to allow the children the day before Christmas to prepare for what is one of the principal events of childhood. Last night there were seven members of the board present, and a majority voted down the proposition to give the usual Christmas eve holiday. As a result the children are mad, and Trustee Weille, who is in favor of allowing the holiday, is mad too, and stated today that there was talk of a general strike at all the schools of Paducah tomorrow.

"Some of the trustees," he declared, "seem to have forgotten that they were ever children. Christmas eve is almost Christmas itself. With the busy times incident to Christmas, the happy anticipation, and the general good feeling which takes the minds of the children off their studies and makes school practically useless, it seems to me that they should have been granted a holiday tomorrow, and if I had time I should go out myself and organize them into a strike and march them down town in a body."

Many expressions of disapproval at the action of the board were heard today on the streets, and it is not at all unlikely that the children, if enough go to school tomorrow, will boldly march out and defy the powers that be.

If they do it will be Paducah's first school children strike.

Prominent Citizen of Fulton County Is Badly Injured.

Pursued His Daughter to Prevent Her Marriage and May Die From Hurts.

THE COUPLE WAS MARRIED

Mr. John C. Browder, one of Fulton county's most popular, wealthy and highly esteemed citizens was seriously injured near Fulton while pursuing his daughter who was eloping with a young man to Fulton to be wedded, says the Fulton Leader.

Mr. Browder was hurt internally and is in a critical condition and may die from his wounds.

Sunday morning he and his family were attending the meeting at Union church. Just before preaching his eldest daughter, Miss Anthony, who is quite young, and Mr. T. E. Williamson, quietly eluded the crowd and jumped into a buggy and started at a fast speed to Fulton to be married. The father of the young lady saw the couple start and suspecting the elopement, hastened to his buggy and with Mr. Bert Milner started in hot pursuit.

His buggy soon broke down and not to be thus outwitted, he unhitched his horse and started on a full run on horseback after the couple.

He was gaining rapidly and would have overtaken them, but fate was against him and his horse stumbled and fell near Jeff Hewitt's residence. Mr. Browder was thrown against a tree and sustained internal injuries which may result in his death.

He was picked up and removed to Mr. Hewitt's residence where physicians were hastily summoned. They found no bones broken but state that he is in a critical condition. Mr. Williamson and Miss Browder drove on to Fulton and were united in marriage at 11:30 o'clock in the morning by Esq. Roberts in South Fulton.

This is What an Indiana Congressman Claims Now.

Says Six Feet of Water Is All Needed in the Ohio River.

DOES NOT FAVOR NINE FEET

The opposition to a nine foot stage in the Ohio river seems to be growing, and prospects are just now not very bright for any early action on the gigantic project.

In a statement made yesterday Congressman W. T. Zenor of Indiana said he believed the Pennsylvania coal interests were behind the movement to give the Ohio river a nine foot stage of water the year around and declared that it was a step towards securing a monopoly of the coal business, to the disadvantage of Kentucky and other states touching the river, says yesterday's Courier-Journal. Mr. Zenor advocates a six foot stage. His position is unique and he is the first congressman of Kentucky or Indiana to take this stand.

Congressman Zenor was at Rufus' hotel yesterday. He says the action of the Ohio Valley Improvement association in asking for an appropriation to make the stage nine feet may endanger the chances of securing an appropriation for any improvement. He says there is not a boat on the river that draws over three and one-half or four feet of water, and that a stage of six feet will be ample.

"It looks like the coal men of Pennsylvania are behind the movement advocated by the Ohio Valley Improvement association," said Mr. Zenor. "For this reason several of the congressmen from the Ohio valley do not look with as much favor upon the proposition as they otherwise would. A water stage of nine feet would almost give them a monopoly in the coal business, and in my opinion this is just what they are looking for. They would have great coal barges built that would draw seven or eight feet of water and put thousands of tons of coal upon them. Thus Kentucky and other coal states on the river would be discriminated against, for the tributaries to the Ohio have been improved only for a stage of six feet. The coal people in these states would have to have much smaller barges than those in Pennsylvania, and consequently would have to ask a higher price for their coal. Mr. Bromwell of Cincinnati is one of those who look with disfavor upon the proposition.

"The river has been improved to Cincinnati, and has a depth of six feet. Now, according to the present proposition, the locks and dams already made would have to be improved. There would be no end to the cost, and it is doubtful if congress will agree to give the money. I think if the people of the Ohio valley are reasonable money will be provided for improving the river. It will cost about $40,000,000 to provide a stage of six feet from Pittsburgh to Cairo, and to provide a stage of nine feet would, of course, take a great deal more. In fact, no estimate has been made of the cost, and those behind the movement want several appropriations, making the improvement gradually."

FOR EDDYVILLE

PRISONERS WERE TAKEN AWAY TODAY.

Deputy Sheriffs William Lydon and H. F. Lyons assisted by Messrs. Will Wesson May Trice, John Hall and Sam Beadles, left at noon for Eddyville with the following prisoners convicted in this term of criminal circuit court: White prisoners are Eli Hutchinson, Fred Edmonds, Tobe Dennis, Jim Riley, Joe Bennett. Hutchinson got eleven years, the heaviest sentence. Colored prisoners are Will Hamilton, Jim Anderson, Sardus Hart, Jerry Cook, C. W. Wilson, Harman Matthews and Andrew Petty.

Mr. Alex Patton, the constable, is better today.

The Retail and Wholesale Trade in Paducah is Enormous.

The Increase Is From 30 to 75 Per Cent. Over Last Year's Record.

EVERYBODY IS JUBILANT

Yesterday and today have been the best shopping days Paducah merchants ever had. The Christmas buying is at its climax and is the best in the history of the retail trade. At the principal stores yesterday and today it has been a hard matter to get waited on. The shoppers had simply to call on their stock of patience and wait their turn.

A very noticeable feature of this holiday shopping is the great volume of the better grade of goods being purchased. The furniture people and the jewelry houses especially coming in for a big proportion of the business. The Paducah Furniture company report their business, so far, just double that of last year at the same time, and the Rhodes-Burford company give the same report. Wolfe, Nagel and Bleich, all report their business surpassing last season by about 30 per cent.

With the big dry goods houses it is the same way. Our business, said Mr. Phillips, of the Rudy, Phillips and Co., "is the biggest we have ever done. We are satisfied indeed. A gratifying thing to us is that we have yet to have a month, since seven years ago, when our business was not ahead of the same month in the year preceding."

Mr. Rieke, of Ogilvie and Co., Mr. Eley of the Eley Dry goods Co., and Mr. Schwab of T. Schwab give the same cheering reports.

But this is not the case with the larger houses only. One finds it the case with all lines of trade, the little fellows and the big ones. In wholesale circles the report, the universal one, is that never before have Paducah houses sold the goods they have this season. This is certainly good news to all Paducahians. It speaks well for the hustling abilities of our merchants, retail and wholesale, and shows as well the prosperity of Paducah and West Kentucky.

2500 KILLED

AND MANY HOUSES ARE DESTROYED BY AN EARTHQUAKE.

London, Dec. 23.—A dispatch from New Marghelan, Russian Turkestan, reports that the earthquake at Andjan killed 2,500 people, in and near that city and destroyed 16,000 houses. The rumblings continue. The authorities so far have not been able to cope with the destitution of the starving, unsheltered people.

BACKED FROM BRIDGE.

Dyersburg, Tenn., Dec. 23.—Captain Young, a young man from the First district of the county, came in to town and after buying a new buggy as a Christmas present for his wife and four jugs of warm whiskey for himself, started out for home somewhat under the influence of liquor. After going out from town about two miles he met a large herd of cattle on Pond creek bridge and his horse became frightened and unmanageable and jumped or backed with him from the bridge into the seething waters of Pond creek, now full to overflowing from the recent freshets. The horse and man were both drowned. The body of Captain Young was a popular and well connected young man.

TWO INDICTMENTS.

Found by the Grand Jury in the Sam Holland Case.

Attorney Wheeler Campbell Indicted for Obstructing Justice in the Case.

HOLLAND HAS GIVEN BOND

Sam Holland has been arrested on two bench warrants and executed bond on indictments found by the last grand jury in connection with a gambling case. He was taken in custody by Deputy Lydon yesterday and in a short time had given the bond and been released.

The trouble grew out of a visit several young men made to the Peters saloon near Eleventh and Broadway several days ago. It was alleged that Holland was setting up and operating a crap game over the saloon, and a warrant was sworn out against him before Justice Jesse Young. He claimed he was not guilty and demanded a trial in order to determine whether or not to hold him over to the grand jury and send him to jail or require him to give a bond, which in his case was fixed at $500. He was present in the justice's court at the time for hearing the case, and Campbell and Campbell, his attorneys, demanded a trial for their client, which was refused by the justice, who said he would simply turn it over to the grand jury.

Holland's attorneys remonstrated and said that the prisoner was entitled to a trial, and that if the evidence were heard, he would be promptly released instead of held to the grand jury and committed to jail or required to give a heavy bond.

The justice would not consent and Attorney Wheeler Campbell told Holland to go, as they could not longer hold him, and he left. He made no effort to escape, however, and has been here on the streets ever since.

The grand jury took up the case and indicted Holland for setting up a game, and for swearing falsely when he was called before that body to testify. He has given bond and the cases will not come up until April.

Attorney Wheeler Campbell, his lawyer, was indicted for obstructing justice in advising his client to leave the magistrate's court. It is claimed by Holland's attorneys that every man charged with an offense like that is entitled to a preliminary hearing in order to determine whether or not to hold him for grand jury action. If he is hauled up and bound over without any sort of trial, and committed to jail to await grand jury action, he is being deprived of his liberty without due process of law, and the magistrates and other officials implicated, and their bondsmen, are liable for damages. A prisoner can also sue for forcing him to give a bond without according him a preliminary hearing, they claim.

Several damage suits are already talked of in connection with the Holland case.

Says She Cannot Legally Exhibit Herself for Two Years.

Johnny has changed his mind about being a hunter. Can you tell what took his nerve?

Jest 'Fore Christmas.

Eugene Field.

Father calls me William, sister calls me Will;
Mother calls me Willie, but the fellows call me Bill; Mighty glad I ain't a girl—rather be a boy, Without them sashes, curls an' things that's worn by Fauntleroy; Love to chawnk green apples an' go swimmin' in the lake—Hate to take the castor-ile they give for bellyache!
Most all the time, the whole year 'round, there ain't no flies on me, But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Got a yeller dog named Sport, sick him on the cat; First thing she knows she doesn't know where she's at!
Got a clipper sled, and when us kids go out to slide,
'Long comes the grocery cart an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery man is worried an' cross He reaches at us with his whip an' larrups up his boss; An' then I laff an' holler: "Oh ye never teched me!"
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Granma says she hope that when I git to be a man I'll be a missionarier like her eldest brother Dan, As was et up by the cannibals that lives on Ceylon's Isle, Where every prospect pleases an' only man is vile;
But granma she has never been to see a Wild West show, Nor read the life of Daniel Boone, or else, I guess she'd know That Buff'lo Bill and cowboys is good enough for me!
But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

An' then old Sport he hangs around as solemn like an' still,
His eyes they seem a-sayin': "What's the matter, Little Bill?"
The old cat sneaks down off her perch an' wonders what become Of them two enemies of hern that used to make things hum!
But I'm so perlitte and tend so earnestly to biz, That mother says to father: "How improved our Willie is!"
But father, havin' been a boy himself, suspicious me But jest 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

For Christmas, with its lots and lots of candy, cakes and toys, Was made, they say, for proper kids an' not for naughty boys:
So wash yer face and brush yer hair an' mind yer p's and q's An' don't bust out yer pantaloon an' don't wear out yer shoes; Say "yessum" to the ladies and "yessur" to the men, An' when there's company don't pass your plate for pie again;
But thinkin' of the things yer'd like to see upon that tree, Jest 'fore Christmas be as good as yer kin be!

A HELPING HAND

IS GLADLY EXTENDED BY A PADUCAH CITIZEN.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Paducah prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

Mr. J. W. Hart of 233 Jefferson street, proprietor of boarding house near Central Park, says: "I had attacks of kidney complaint for four or five years and every time I caught cold it settled in the loins and I suffered severely. When the spells were at their worst I could hardly stoop or bend. If I did stoop I was compelled to regain an erect position very, very slowly. On such occasions trouble with the kidney secretions existed, and when last annoyed I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills advertised at DuBois and Co.'s drug store and guaranteed to cure just such symptoms of kidney complaint mentioned above. Getting them and using as directed, the results of the treatment was decidedly satisfactory."

JUDGE ROBBINS RESIGNS.

HE HAS FORWARDED HIS RESIGNATION TO JUDGE BECKHAM.

Judge J. E. Robbins yesterday forwarded from Mayfield his resignation as circuit judge of that district, effective December 31. The resignation was talked of sometime before and Judge Robbins retires on account of ill health, and will devote his time to the practice of law.

R. J. Bugg, of Bardwell and W. P. Lee, of Mayfield, are applicants for the position.

KILLED IN MEMPHIS.

Harry Hicks, night depot master of the I. C. passenger depot at Memphis, was killed in Memphis yesterday morning under the wheels of a switch engine. He was passing over the tracks near the depot when the engine came along. He was unable to see on account of darkness and was caught before a warning could be given. He was the son of H. L. Hicks, superintendent of the Belt Line system, and was only 18 years of age.

HE FOUND A CURE.

R. H. Foster, 318 South Second street, Salt Lake City, writes: "I have been bothered with dyspepsia or indigestion for 21 years, have tried many doctors without relief, but I have found a cure in Herbine. I recommend it to all my friends who are afflicted that way, and it is curing them too." 50c at DuBois and Co.'s.

DIED IN EVANSVILLE

RELATIVE OF MR. SAM GIVEN DIES THERE.

Mr. Sam Givens, of Trimble street, near Sixth, has received notice of the death of Mr. Joseph Givens, an uncle, at Evansville, Ind., Sunday. The deceased was originally from Morganfield, Ky., the home of Mr. Sam Givens and was a prominent merchant at that place. He was 65 years old and died of general debility. He leaves many relatives besides Mr. Givens of Paducah, who will leave with his wife today for Morganfield to attend the funeral.

WAS INDICTED

T. B. LEONARD MUST FACE A GRAVE CHARGE IN LOUISVILLE.

Louisville dispatches say that Thomas B. Leonard of that place, but formerly assistant superintendent of the Paducah street railway, has been indicted there for obtaining money by false pretenses, by securing from Mrs. Lila S. Kavanaugh about $700 which he represented he wanted for his company, but which he is alleged to have converted to his own use. Mr. Leonard is a son of Mr. S. N. Leonard, the Eddyville banker.

MAY CHANGE THINGS.

BUGG'S APPOINTMENT MAY KNOCK OUT RAY'S CHANCES.

The appointment of R. J. Bugg circuit judge to succeed Judge Robbins at Mayfield will probably mean much politically down in this end of the state. Mr. Bugg lives in Bardwell and is certain to secure the appointment. If he does it will probably reduce the chances of Attorney John Ray of Frankfort, a brother to Attorney James Ray of the city, to become clerk of the court of appeals, to which place he aspires.

He consented to return without a requisition, and the officer took him to Mississippi last evening.

Ping-Pong in Turkey.

Ping-pong has become quite the fashionable game in Turkey. The khedivah, mother to the khedive of Egypt, has a ping-pong table in her magnificent new palace on the Bosphorus and her ladies play every day. One great advantage that they have is a number of little black slaves in attendance, who save them the trouble of picking up their balls.

SLEEP OF DEATH

ABOUT 30,000 PERSONS ALREADY KILLED BY IT.

London, Dec. 23.—The school of tropical medicine has issued a report on the sleeping sickness which is now devastating Uganda. Though it was discovered only a few years ago, it is computed that the disease has already killed from 20,000 to 30,000 persons, and is spreading to new areas with increasing virulence.

Scientific reports made on the spot describe the sleeping sickness as a complaint something like that group of diseases known as meningitis, or inflammation of the brain. It begins insidiously with changes in the mental attitude of the patient. From that time the disease progresses, and the patient becomes stupid and restless, and, after other symptoms have passed, enters into a state of coma and dies. The duration of the complaint varies from a month in acute cases, to six months or more in chronic cases. The disease is invariably fatal, and, although taking longer to cause death than hydrophobia may be classed along with the latter.

He agreed and left town and has never been heard of until this morning, when he bobbed up again and was promptly arrested and put on the chain gang to serve out his fine.

THE WEATHER.

Cloudy tonight. Wednesday rain or snow and warmer.

The enormous work of abolishing one hundred and fifteen grade crossings has begun at Cleveland, Ohio.
The work will cost about ten million dollars and require ten years. This is the way to make a city. Big undertakings require time and money, but they pay in the long run.

The fluctuating value of silver costs the Mexican government over $7,000,000 a year, according to a report just made by one of the leading newspapers in support of a stable monetary system. The people by reading up on Mexico's plight may get some idea of what we should have had in this country under the late Colonel W. J. Bryan.

The Louisville Courier-Journal
quotes Hon. John K. Hendrick as saying that he will be satisfied with either a primary or a convention. This is more like it. Mr. Hendrick should not be afraid of going before the voters of his party for indorsement instead of risking his chances in a wire-pulling convention, unless he thinks he has hold of a good, live wire, and wanted to get a pull at the nomination from the end of it.

Out in Nebraska a law has been passed prohibiting the reading of the Bible or singing religious songs in the public schools, and 6465 out of 6666 of these schools have ignored the law, likewise a decision of the court of appeals sustaining it. County Attorneys when asked to enforce the law have refused to do so, claiming that the sentiment of the people is against it and that they will not raise a hand to prevent it. Thus we have the unusual spectacle of a whole state defying the legislature and the supreme court.

A contemporary, in speaking of the late primary argues: "By not holding the primary under the law the state committee of three appointed to arrange for the gubernatorial primary can select whatever precinct officers they so desire and thereby place all their henchmen in a position to commit frauds, while if the primary is held under the law the officers for each voting place are chosen by the respective Democratic county committees over the state and everybody thereby given an equal showing in the race." Now the very idea of a Democrats committing fraud or even aiding and abetting it!

It was ever thus. After months of hard work were spent on the Ohio River Improvement Association's plan to secure a nine foot stage of water from Pittsburgh to Cairo, some one of our congressmen comes along and says:

Globe-Dose herewith

Christmas tree to be in the poor of the city the Christmas

and tries to throw cold water on the project by claiming that it is a corporation scheme to hog three feet more water than is needed, and by having a nine foot stage, build bigger coalboats than some of the smaller companies and get a monopoly on the coal business. Of course this may be true, as we don't know anything about it, while the average congressman knows everything.

Louisville seems very much stirred up over the incontestability of certain insurance policies on the life of
regard to the suicide clause of insurance policies, the courts have virtually decided in this state, as well as many others, that the clause is of no force if the deceased was mentally unbalanced, and most juries are soon convinced that a man must be deranged before he will take his life.
Few policies are knocked out on the suicide clause these days. Insurance companies seem to be regarded by the average jury something as railroads. They ought to pay all claims simply because they have the money.

A strong effort is to be made, apparently, to run former President Cleveland for the Democratic nomination for president, and he is regarded as the only Moses that stands any chance at all, alim as it is, of leading the benighted children of Democracy into the promised land. There is a deep-rooted prejudice among certain classes against a third term, and doubtless many arguments can be adduced for
and against it, but it has been a long time since George Washington set the pace, and things have changed considerably since then. It is not at all improbable that Cleveland will eventually be boosted into the ring and made to fight for the empty honor of representing Democracy in the next national campaign.

"Golden Rule" Jones, mayor of Toledo, Ohio, paid a deserved tribute to President Roosevelt in his speech Sunday before the Chicago peace society when he said: "Theodore Roosevelt, as a man, is greater than the government he represents. While the government of the United States was unable to restore peace in the anthracite region, Roosevelt, not as president, but as a man, suggested a rational way to settle the trouble. The man triumphed and the problem was solved." President Roosevelt is regarded as a fine type of vigorous, conscientious, intellectual manhood, and no greater confidence in him could have been expressed than by the nations of Europe who asked him to act as the sole arbitrator in the Venezuelan case. He is well worthy to represent this great American people.

If it be true that Germany is trying to force from this government some specific definition of the Monroe doctrine, it is perhaps no more than might be expected in the course of human events. We are all for our government, right or wrong, but European nations, and perhaps not entirely without justification, have conceived the idea that we feel obligated to succor and encourage the small South American republics in any undiplomatic act they may commit, and something should be done to disabuse the minds of other nations on this score. The Monroe doctrine may have been all right in
be all right today, and is right in the opinion of most patriotic American citizens, yet it does not mean that this government has a right to meddle in the affairs of other nations, and say
"hands off" to them for collecting what is due them, or for administering a good licking to some of the incorrigible republics when it is justified. The sooner these South American nations and the nations of Europe are given to understand this, the sooner will the almost incessant howls cease in South America, and civilization be advanced.

Two Warrants for Violating the Saloon Ordinance.

Legal Talent in Abundance Employed to Fight the Respective Sides.

FIRST ORDINANCE UNSIGNED

The test of the saloon ordinance came quickly. This afternoon it is to be argued before Judge Sanders, in the police court. While the ordinance was effective from the time the mayor signed it, no effort was made to enforce it until last night, and this morning two warrants were issued, one against Mr. James McNulty, of North Fourth and the other against Mr.
Charles Graham, at Ninth and Court, or remaining open later than 10:30 o'clock.

The cases were called in Judge Sanders' court this morning and set for 2 o'clock this afternoon. They will be prosecuted by Attorney Jesse Gilbert, for the city, and by Reed and Berry, who have been employed to assist.

The defense will be represented by Moss, Lightfoot and Flournoy and Harrison. There will no doubt be several reasons offered why the ordinance
closing the saloon is one thing, 11:30 in the title, and another, 10:30, in the ordinance proper.

The attorneys will also offer much law in support of their respective sides. The attorneys for the defense claim that they have found a law which will knock it out, while the other side claim that the new ordinance comes under the head of police regulations, and is constitutional.

In regard to the discrepancy in the ordinance, President Reed, of the council, this morning made an investigation, and learned the true status of the case. The original ordinance has never been signed, and contains the correct figures. That in the title was originally 11:30, the same as in the body of the ordinance, but when it was amended the change was made by making the "c" around the "1" and the "0" has now become so dim that it can hardly be seen, making it appear 11:30 instead of 10:30.

This ordinance after final passage was copied, and the stenographer mistook the corrected figures for 11:30, and so copied them. The mistake was not noticed by Alderman Greif, of the enrollment committee, when he went over it and certified to it as correct, and it was handed to the speaker of the council, the president of the aldermen and the mayor the same way and each signed it without noticing
the mistake. The original ordinance, however, the one read and passed in each board is not the one that has been signed. The one that was signed is a copy, which further complicates the case. Some claim that the defect could be remedied by the three officials, or the mayor alone signing the original ordinance and throwing the copy away.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

Erhart's comic opera, "The Mystic Forest, with its bright and catchy music, funny and laughable comedy lines, grotesque stage situations, pretty girls, grand chorus and orchestra, augmented by a wealth of magnificent ensemble and special features at The Kentucky Friday night, December 26, will prove an elaborate and brilliant amateur entertainment. The War of the Roses, The Ice Queen, both superb spectacular innovations. The Tots' Reception, Minuet and other added features too numerous to mention will add much to the enjoyableness of the occasion, which is given under the

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 23.—A pretty, well dressed woman 19 years old, giving her name as Mrs. W. O. Hazel, of Covington, Ky., died at the city hospital this morning from morphine, and wounds in her wrist, inflicted with a pair of scissors. She is Mrs. Clarence Hazel, who figured in the papers throughout the Central states last week because of her efforts to kill herself in the Latonia hotel in Covington, Ky.

MR. WHAYNE'S WILL PROBATED

O. Wayne was probated. Bequests of
the estate, which includes $390,000 of life insurance goes to the testator's wife and children.

dition that they marry which they agreed to do.

evening give a smoker at their hall over Garrison's saloon on South Third street. Messrs. Howard Pleasants, Charlie Brady and Kenny Murray have made arrangements for the enjoyable.

Middlesboro, Dec. 23.—Will Mills, a town boy, was shot to death last night by Chris Turner, aged 23, son of Joe Turner, a mountaineer. Turner was shot twice by Mills and mortally wounded.

Mr. A. Y. Martin, the well known young attorney, will leave tonight for Mississippi on a visit to relatives and will also do a little bear hunting.

Rosemarie Elizabeth, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Oehlschlaeger, Jr., who has been very sick for the past few days, is no better. She is threatened with pneumonia.

Mrs. W. M. Stewart of Eighth and Clark streets is expecting her husband home to spend a few days during the holidays. Mr. Stewart accepted a month ago, and will remain there through the winter.

None That Old.

"Old man Weltlich died yesterday," announced the first man, "and in his
woman in town who is 35 years old shall receive $100,000."

"No takers," said the racy gent, who claimed to know something about women.

It's curious how mad it makes some girls when a man kisses them and acts like he didn't think they were

A LIGHT DOCKET THIS FORE-NOON.

Claude Carneil, white, confessed to having been drunk and was fined $1 and costs.

Jack Qualls, colored, was fined $25 and sentenced to ten days in jail for carrying concealed weapons.

J. L. Jernigan, colored, was fined $20 and cost for a breach of the peace. He is alleged to have cursed and threatened an old grayheaded man on the street without provocation.

Harry Hardin, white, was dismissed of the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. It was alleged that he had gone to Langstaff-Orme Mfg.
Co. and secured a load of wood saying that Mr. Courtney Long had sent for it.

The housebreaking case against Will
accused of having been implicated in the burglarizing of the Wallerstein establishment. He claims he can prove an alibi. Perry Bryant and Ed Lawrence, the other two, were indicted by the recent grand jury.

In Defense of Claret.

We learn that his majesty the king received the offer from various wine merchants and growers of the Bordeaux district of a thousand bottles of claret, or more if so desired. The bottles were not to bear the names of firms or owners of vineyards, and the gift was simply intended to commemorate the coronation. It is stated that Lord Pembroke, in his reply, regretted that claret was not used in the hospitals of the country, but all the same he thanked the wine growers who had made this generous offer. It may be true that claret is not used in British hospitals, but is there any reason why it should not be—any reason so cogent as to cause this excellent gift horse to be looked suspiciously in the face? Claret, by which we mean sound Bordeaux, such as this wine would have been, is an excellent and wholesome drink, and we think that it is a thousand pities, from every point of view, that the generous and kindly thought of the Bordeaux growers was not more appreciated.—Lancet.

Southern Hospitality.

Walter H. Page says in an article on the old commonwealths in the south that the people in the older towns and villages in that section are not only more purely Anglo-Saxon than those in other parts of the union, but retain many primitive virtues.
They are affectionate and helpful.
Hospitality is not a mere habit; it is a necessity of their natures. It was in a town like this that a plan was made to build a hotel and when the leading citizen was asked to subscribe to stock in the hotel company he replied with a touch of indignation: "A hotel? What do you want with a hotel? Whenever a gentleman comes to town I entertain him and if a man comes here who isn't a gentleman let him go on." If you are a gentleman and go there any man in the town will stop work for a day (or seem to stop it) to entertain you. His household will seem to move wholly with reference to your comfort and convenience.

Explanation of Little Value.

An editor on a daily paper has laid himself open to unkind remarks by trying to take up a collection in his office. Happening to want a small coin, he turned to a fellow-worker and asked for a quarter.

the man replied, as he tossed it over.
The editor put the dollar in his pocket and immediately turned to a special writer at the next desk and said:
"Miss —, could you lend me a quarter?" Then, seeing the man from whom he had got the dollar grin, he added, hastily: "Oh, never mind; I just got a dollar from Brown."

In analyzing his conduct he said that Brown's reply that he did not have a quarter was apparently the only part of the transaction that made any impression upon him. But he is under suspicion in that office, and will probably never be able to live it down.

Small Things That Count.

It is said that Caesar chose his generals according to the length of their forefingers in comparison with that of their second fingers. No man whose forefinger was over one-eighth of an inch shorter than his middle finger had a ghost of a show. Men with very short forefingers are supposed to be effeminate. I believe it is so. Napoleon's generals were selected by their noses. Cromwell believed that bow-legged men made the best soldiers. Washington preferred men with high cheek bones. Receding fore-heads were the rule among his generals. Alexander the Great judged men by their teeth, those having very large canines being preferred as commanders.

Case Was Not Hopeless.

During the recent coronation business in London, two of society's pet dames got quarrelling. One of those handy Chauncey Depew peacemakers having heard of it, asked, "Did they call each other ugly?" "No," "Well, well, I shall soon reconcile them."

DAILY THOUGHT.

Blessed be the hand that prepares a

or snow and warmer.

ings has begun at Cleveland, Ohio.
they pay in the long run.

costs the Mexican government over $7,000,000 a year, according to a report just made by one of the leading
W. J. Bryan.

quotes Hon. John K. Hendrick as say-
ers of his party for indorsement in-
wants to get a pull at the nomination from the end of it.

these schools have ignored the law, likewise a decision of the court of appeals sustaining it. County Attorneys
when asked to enforce the law have re-

primary argues: "By not hold-
can select whatever precincts officers
the very idea of a Democrats committing fraud or even aiding and
abetting it!

It was ever thus. After months
of hard work were spent on the Ohio
in Pittsburg to Cairo, some one and congressman comes along and bel-

all died Globe-Desire herewith

project by claiming that it is a cor-
knows everything.

up over the incontestibility of cer-
surance policies, the courts have vir-
no force if the deceased was mentally unbalanced, and most juries are

all, slim as it is, of leading the be-
pace, and things have changed con-
next national campaign.

Sunday before the Chicago peace society when he said: "Theodore Roosevelt, as a man, is greater than the government he represents. While the gov-
region, Roosevelt, not as president,
the sole arbitrator in the Venezuelan case. He is well worthy to represent this great American people.

out justification, have conceived the
and encourage the small South American republics in any undiplomatic act
what is due them, or for administering a good licking to some of the incorrigible republics when it is justified. The sooner these South American nations and the nations of Europe
er will the almost incessant broils
tion be advanced.

loon Ordinance.

Sides.

to be argued before Judge Sanders, in the police court. While the ordinance
against Mr. James McNulty, of North
Charles Graham, at Ninth and Court,
o'clock.

The cases were called in Judge San-
prosecuted by Attorney Jesse Gilbert,
for the city, and by Reed and Berry,
who have been employed to assist.

Harrison. There will no doubt be sev-
ordinance proper.

lations, and is constitutional.

ordinance, President Reed, of the council, this morning made an investiga-
it can hardly be seen, making it appear 11:30 instead of 10:30.

took the corrected figures for 11:30,
was not noticed by Alderman Greif,
the mistake. The original ordinance,
copy away.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

Ehrhart's comic opera, "The Myste-
girls, grand chorus and orchestra, aug-
will prove an elaborate and brilliant
spectacular innovations. The Tots' Reception, Minuet and other added fea-

ty, well dressed woman 19 years old, giving her name as Mrs. W. C. Hazel, of Covington, Ky., died at the city hospi-
Ky.

Louisville, Dec. 23.—The will of R.
O. Wayne was probated. Bequests of
life insurance goes to the testators, his wife and children.

ants, Charlie Brady and Kenny Murray have made arrangements for the affair, which promises to be most enjoyable.

town boy, was shot to death last night
Turner, a mountaineer. Turner was
wounded.

Mr. A. Y. Martin, the well known young attorney, will leave tonight for
will also do a little bear hunting.

of Mr. and Mrs. George Oehlschlaeger,
is threatened with pneumonia.

Mrs. W. M. Stewart of Eighth and
position in Pine Bluff, Ark., over a month ago, and will remain there
through the winter.

None That Old.

shall receive $100,000."
"No takers," said the racy gent,
women.

NOON.

and costs.

carrying concealed weapons.

J. L. Jernigan, colored, was fined
and threatened a old grayheaded man on the street without provocation.

false pretenses. It was alleged that he had gone to Langstaff-Orme Mfg.
Co. and secured a load of wood say-
for it.

accused of having been implicated in
prove an alibi. Perry Bryant and Ed Lawrence, the other two, were indi-cited by the recent grand jury.

In Defense of Claret.

deaux district of a thousand bottles of
British hospitals, but is there any reason why it should not be—any reason so cogent as to cause this excellent
would have been, is an excellent and
not more appreciated.—Lancet.

Southern Hospitality.

not only more purely Anglo-Saxon
than those in other parts of the union,
but retain many primitive virtues.
a necessity of their nature. It was
venience.

Explanation of Little Value.

asked for a quarter.

the man replied, as he tossed it over.
writer at the next desk and said:

THE FATAL SPOT

In everybody's foot there is one weak spot—The toes are strong, the ball of the foot is firm, the heel is unyielding, but the ARCH of the foot under the instep is a weak place. Being arched it is wholly unsupported—being weak its the one place that gets tired, but all the same its the muscle by which you walk, its the one part of the foot that needs to be helped.

The Dorothy Dodd Shoe

supports the arch of the foot by a special curved shank between the inner and outer soles, this shank exactly follows the arch of the foot. It holds its shape and supports the foot.

The Man In Charge

On the first and third Tuesdays of each month the Burlington sells homeseekers' tickets to the territory East of the Rockies at one fare plus $2.00 round trip. On the same dates one-way settlers' tickets to the same region are sold at a trifle more than half rates.

The Burlington best reaches the corn belt, the wheat belt, the livestock areas of the Louisiana Purchase, and, in connection with the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroads, forms direct routes to the upper Northwest country through St. Louis or Chicago.

The generous harvest of 1902 in the West is a strong appeal to homeseekers and investors to see the rewards now being gained by farmers, stock raisers and fruit growers, not only in the regions of natural rainfall, but in the spreading irrigated districts of Eastern Colorado, Northwest Nebraska, the North Platte and Big Horn Valleys of Wyoming, also of Idaho, Montana and Washington.

Send for any of our special land publications, all free—"Nebraska," "Black Hills Mining," "North Platte Valley," "Big Horn Basin," "West Nebraska Grazing Country," "The Corn Belt," also of Minnesota, the Dakotas, or the Northwest.

THOUGHT HE COULD SELL THEM

He Was Sure "Settin'" Hadn't Gone Out of Fashion.

During a recent meeting in Alexander Hall, at Princeton University, at which the majority of the faculty were present, the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke said that the discussion reminded him of a story which he had just heard:

"A young college woman went to spend her Easter vacation with an old uncle in a town in Northern Vermont, where he owned a modest chair factory. Soon after her arrival her good, old uncle took her through his plant. The girl, bright-eyed and alert, noticing a large number of finished chairs stored in every corner of the factory, evidently an accumulation of old stock, exclaimed: "But, uncle, do you ever expect to get rid of all these old chairs?" "Yes, I reckon I'll sell all them chairs easy 'nough. Settin' ain't goin' out o' fashion nohow," replied the old man, quietly."

Soldier Claimed the Sun Warped Furrows He Had Plowed.

To improve the condition of one of the camps in the Philippines, General MacArthur had some ground plowed and a tropical garden started. Among the men set to work in this humane undertaking was a soldier of Irish extraction, temporarily under punishment for consuming undue quantities of vino.

Husbandry was an unaccustomed pursuit to this soldier, and his efforts to guide the mules and hold the plow in the furrow resulted in zigzag and serpentine rows.

General MacArthur went out to inspect the work.

"See here," said he to the soldier, "what do you mean by that kind of business?" pointing to the crazy furrows.

"I plowed them straight, your honor," the soldier replied, "but the sun must have warped 'em."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

To improve the condition of one of the camps in the Philippines, General MacArthur had some ground plowed and a tropical garden started. Among the men set to work in this humane undertaking was a soldier of Irish extraction, temporarily under punishment for consuming undue quantities of vino.

Husbandry was an unaccustomed pursuit to this soldier, and his efforts to guide the mules and hold the plow in the furrow resulted in zigzag and serpentine rows.

General MacArthur went out to inspect the work.

"See here," said he to the soldier, "what do you mean by that kind of business?" pointing to the crazy furrows.

"I plowed them straight, your honor," the soldier replied, "but the sun made them warped 'em."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Gaboriau

Was she, too, an accomplice? This blow broke down his courage.

M. Fauvel well knew that the fact of the diamonds being stolen was not sufficient ground upon which to bring an accusation against the accomplices.
Happily he could procure other proof.
He began by calling his valet and ordering him to bring him every letter that should come to the house. He then wrote to a notary at St. Remy to send him a telegram containing authentic information about the Lagors family and especially about Raoul.

The Lagors are very poor, and no one knows any member of the family named Raoul. Mm.
Lagors had no son, only two daughters.

The next day, among the letters which his valet brought him, was one bearing the postmark of Vesinet. He opened the envelope with great care and read:

Dear Aunt—It is indispensable that I see you today. Come to me. I will explain why I give you this trouble instead of calling on you.

"I have them now!" cried M. Fauvel, trembling with satisfaction at the near prospect of vengeance.

Eager to lose no time, he opened a drawer, took out a revolver and examined the hammer to see if it was in order. He imagined himself alone, but a vigilant eye was watching his movements. Gipsy, under strict instructions from M. Verduret, stationed herself at the keyhole of the study door and saw all that occurred. M. Fauvel laid the pistol on the mantelpiece and resealed the letter, which he then placed where the letters were usually left, not wishing his wife to know that it had passed through his hands. He was only absent but two minutes; but, inspired by the imminence of the danger, Gipsy darted into the study, rushed to the mantel and rapidly extracted the balls from the revolver.

"There!" she murmured. "This peril is, for the present, averted, and M.
Verduret, whom I shall warn through Cavallion, will now perhaps have time to prevent a murder." She descended to the bank and sent the clerk with a message, telling him to leave it with Mme. Alexandre f.
M. Verduret. An hour later Mme. Fau-vel ordered her carriage and went out.
M. Fauvel took a hackney coach and followed her.

"Great heavens!" cried Nina to herself. "If M. Verduret does not reach there in time, Mme. Fauvel and Raoul are lost!"

WHEN the Marquis of Clameran perceived that Raoul de Lagors was the only obstacle between him and Madeleine, he swore that the obstacle should be removed.

The same day his plan was laid. As Raoul was walking out to Vesinet about midnight he was stopped at a lonely spot by three men, who asked him what o'clock it was. While looking at his watch the ruffians fell upon him suddenly.

By his skillful blows, for he had become proficient in boxing in England, Raoul made his enemies take to their heels. He continued his walk home, determined to be hereafter well armed when he went out at night. He never for an instant suspected his accomplice of having instigated the assault.

But two days afterward, at a cafe which he frequented, a vulgar looking man, a stranger to him, after trying to provoke a quarrel, finally threw a card in his face, saying its owner was ready to grant him satisfaction. Raoul rushed toward the man to thrash him with his fists, but his friends held him back.
"Very well, then. You will hear from me tomorrow," he said to his assailant.
"Wait at your hotel until I send two friends to you."

As soon as the stranger had gone Raoul recovered from his excitement and began to wonder what could have been the motive for the insult. Picking up the man's card, he read:

"W. H. B. Jacobson, formerly Garibaldi volunteer, ex-officer of the Army of the South (Italy, America), 30 Leonie street."

"Oh," he thought, "here is a big military man who can whip everybody!"

Raoul had seen enough of the world to understand these heroes who cover their visiting cards with titles.

But, since the insult had been offered in the presence of others, early the next morning Raoul sent two of his friends to make arrangements for a duel. He gave them M. Jacobson's address and told them to report at the Hotel du Louvre, where he proposed to sleep.

At half past 8 in the morning his seconds arrived. M. Jacobson had selected the sword and would fight that very hour in the woods of Vincennes.

"Let us be off!" cried Raoul gayly.
"I accept the gentleman's conditions."

After a minute's fencing Raoul was slightly wounded in the right shoulder.
The "ex-officer of the south" wished to continue the combat, but Raoul's seconds declared that honor was satisfacted and that they had no intention of imperiling their friend's life again.

The ex-officer was obliged to acquiesce. Raoul went home delighted at having escaped with nothing more serious than a little loss of blood and resolved to keep clear of all so called Garibaldians in the future. In fact, a night's reflection had convinced him that Clameran was the instigator of the two attempts to kill him. Mme. Fau-vel having told him what conditions Madeleine placed on her consent to marriage, Raoul instantly saw the great interest Clameran would have in his removal. He recalled a thousand little remarks and events of the last few days, and on skillfully questioning the marquis his suspicions changed into certainty. This conviction that the man whom he had so materially assisted in his criminal plans was so basely ungrateful as to turn against him inspired in Raoul a resolution to take speedy vengeance upon his treacherous accomplice and at the same time insure his own safety. He was persuaded that by openly siding with Madeleine and her aunt he could save them from Clameran's clutches. Having fully resolved upon this, he wrote a note to Mme. Fauvel asking for an interview. The poor woman hastened to Vesinet at the appointed hour, convinced that some new misfortune was in store for her. She found Raoul more tender and affectionate than he had ever been. He saw the necessity of reassuring her and winning his old place in her forgiving heart before making his disclosures.

He succeeded. The poor lady had a smiling and happy air in an armchair, with Raoul kneeling before her.

"I have distressed you too long, my dear mother," he said in his softest tones, "but I repent sincerely. Now listen to me."

He had not time to say more. The door was violently thrown open, and M. Fauvel, revolver in hand, entered the room.

"Ah," he said, "you thought you could abuse my credulity forever!"

Raoul had the courage to place himself before Mme. Fauvel and to stand prepared to receive the expected bullet.

"I assure you, uncle"—he began.

"Enough!" interrupted the banker, with an angry gesture. "Cease this acting, of which I am no longer the dupe."

"I swear to you!"

"Spare yourself the trouble of denials.
I know all. I know who pawned my wife's diamonds. I know who committed the robbery for which the innocent Prosper was arrested and imprisoned."

Mme. Fauvel, white with terror, fell upon her knees.

At last it had come—the dreadful day had come! Vainly for years she had added falsehood to falsehood. Vainly she had sacrificed herself and others.
All was now discovered.

"Pardon, Andre! I conjure you, forgive me!"

At these heartbroken tones the banker trembled. This voice brought before him the twenty years which he had spent with this woman, who had always been the mistress of his heart, whose slightest wish had been his law and who by a look could make him the happiest or the most miserable of men.

"Unhappy woman!" he said. "Unhappy woman! What have I done that you should act thus? I have loved you too deeply."

Raoul, who listened with attention, saw that if the banker knew some things he certainly did not know all. He saw that erroneous information had misled the unhappy man and that he was still a victim of false appearances. He determined to convince him of his mistake.

"Monsieur"—he commenced.

But the sound of Raoul's voice was sufficient to break the charm.

"Silence!" cried the banker, with an angry oath. "Silence!"

The stillness was only broken by the sobs of Mme. Fauvel.

"I came here," continued the banker,
"with the intention of killing you both, but courage fails me to kill a woman, and I will not kill an unarmed man."

Raoul once more tried to speak.

"Let me finish!" interrupted M. Fau-vel. "Your life is in my hands. The law excuses the vengeance of an injured husband, but I refuse to take advantage of it. I see on your mantel a revolver similar to mine. Take it and defend yourself."

"Never."

"Defend yourself!" cried the banker, raising his arm. "If not!"

Feeling the barrel of M. Fauvel's revolver touch his breast, Raoul took his own pistol from the mantel.

"Place yourself in that corner of the room, and I will stand in this," continued the banker, "and when the clock strikes, which will be in a few seconds, we will both fire."

They took the places designated. But the horror of the scene was too much for Mme. Fauvel to witness any longer without interposing. She understood but one thing—her son and her husband were about to kill each other before her very eyes. Fright and horror gave her strength to start up and rush between the two men, with extended arms.

"Have pity, Andre!" she cried, wringing her hands in anguish. "Let me tell you! Don't kill!"

This burst of maternal love M. Fau-vel took for the pleading of a criminal defending her lover. He seized his wife by the arm and thrust her aside.

M. Fauvel well knew that the fact of the diamonds being stolen was not sufficient ground upon which to bring an accusation against the accomplices. Happily he could procure other proof. He began by calling his valet and ordering him to bring him every letter that should come to the house. He then wrote to a notary at St. Remy to send him a telegram containing authentic information about the Lagors family and especially about Raoul.

The reply was as follows:
The Lagors are very poor, and no one knows any member of the family named Raoul. Mme. Lagors had no son, only two daughters.

The next day, among the letters which his valet brought him, was one bearing the postmark of Vesinet. He opened the envelope with great care and read:
Dear Aunt—It is indispensable that I see you today. Come to me. I will explain why I give you this trouble instead of calling on you.

RAOUL.
"I have them now!" cried M. Fauvel, trembling with satisfaction at the near prospect of vengeance.

Eager to lose no time, he opened a drawer, took out a revolver and examined the hammer to see if it was in order. He imagined himself alone, but a vigilant eye was watching his movements. Gipsy, under strict instructions from M. Verduret, stationed herself at the keyhole of the study door and saw all that occurred. M. Fauvel laid the pistol on the mantelpiece and revealed the letter, which he then placed where the letters were usually left, not wishing his wife to know that it had passed through his hands. He was only absent but two minutes; but, inspired by the imminence of the danger, Gipsy darted into the study, rushed to the mantel and rapidly extracted the balls from the revolver.

"There!" she murmured. "This peril is, for the present, averted, and M. Verduret, whom I shall warn through Cavallion, will now perhaps have time to prevent a murder."

She descended to the bank and sent the clerk with a message, telling him to leave it with Mme. Alexandre f. M. Verduret. An hour later Mme. Fauvel ordered her carriage and went out. M. Fauvel took a hackney coach and followed her.

"Great heavens!" cried Nina to herself. "If M. Verduret does not reach there in time, Mme. Fauvel and Raoul are lost!"

CHAPTER XIV.

WHEN the Marquis of Clameran perceived that Raoul de Lagors was the only obstacle between him and Madeleine, he swore that the obstacle should be removed.

The same day his plan was laid. As Raoul was walking out to Vesinet about midnight he was stopped at a lonely spot by three men, who asked him what o'clock it was. While looking at his watch the ruffians fell upon him suddenly.

By his skillful blows, for he had become proficient in boxing in England, Raoul made his enemies take to their heels. He continued his walk home, determined to be hereafter well armed when he went out at night. He never for an instant suspected his accomplice of having instigated the assault.

But two days afterward, at a cafe which he frequented, a vulgar looking man, a stranger to him, after trying to provoke a quarrel, finally threw a card in his face, saying its owner was ready to grant him satisfaction. Raoul rushed toward the man to thrash him with his fists, but his friends held him back.

"Very well, then. You will hear from me tomorrow," he said to his assailant. "Wait at your hotel until I send two friends to you."

As soon as the stranger had gone Raoul recovered from his excitement and began to wonder what could have been the motive for the insult. Picking up the man's card, he read:
"W. H. B. Jacobson, formerly Garibaldian volunteer, ex-officer of the Army of the South (Italy, America), 30 Leonie street."

"Oh," he thought, "here is a big military man who can whip everybody!" Raoul had seen enough of the world to understand these heroes who cover their visiting cards with titles.

But, since the insult had been offered in the presence of others, early the next morning Raoul sent two of his friends to make arrangements for a duel. He gave them M. Jacobson's address and told them to report at the Hotel du Louvre, where he proposed to sleep.

At half past 8 in the morning his seconds arrived. M. Jacobson had selected the sword and would fight that very hour in the woods of Vincennes.

"Let us be off!" cried Raoul gayly. "I accept the gentleman's conditions."

After a minute's fencing Raoul was slightly wounded in the right shoulder. The "ex-officer of the south" wished to continue the combat, but Raoul's seconds declared that honor was satisfied and that they had no intention of imperiling their friend's life again. The ex-officer was obliged to acquiesce. Raoul went home delighted at having escaped with nothing more serious than a little loss of blood and resolved to keep clear of all so-called Garibaldians in the future. In fact, a Theatrical Notes.

Mr. Tim Murphy presented "Old Innocence" last night at The Kentucky theater to a large and delighted house full of people. Mr. Murphy was seen in a most entertaining role, that of "J. Green," an old man, while on his previous visit here he interpreted the role of a young man, and thus Paducah theatergoers have had an opportunity to enjoy his remarkable versatility.

"Old Innocence" as a play is perhaps not so interesting, either from a literary or a scenic standpoint as "A Capitol Comedy" which he offered last year, but Mr. Murphy is better, if anything, in the character of "J. Green" than in the other. His main support is Mr. J. R. Armstrong, as "Flint Green," J. Green's brother. The other characters do not afford much opportunity for fine acting, but they are capably handled, and Mr. Murphy's company is first class in every respect. The story of the play is of a good, benevolent old man, J. Green, who is wealthy and hasn't the heart to refuse anyone anything, and is often the victim of designing impostors. His brother, Flint, comes to visit him in New York and is a hard, rugged man who exacts the last penny that is due him, and has very little sentiment or sympathy. He proves to his brother that an applicant for assistance is an impostor, and temporarily convinces the old man that no one is to be trusted. The sudden change in the former philanthropist's disposition as he develops from a fool into philosopher, as he expresses it, affords material for clever acting that keeps the audience in a continual laugh.

Mr. Murphy's words, inflections, expressions and very movements provoke a laugh. He is a whole show in himself, and the audience expressed its approval of him and his company last night in no uncertain measure.

Miss Dorothy Sherrod, as J. Green's young wife, played her part creditably, and Miss Louise Whitfield, who is known here socially, became as the young daughter equally as popular professionally.

Other characters were handled well. There is a monotony of scene as it does not change throughout the play but this does not detract from the enjoyment of the performance in the least.

Mr. Murphy was given a curtain call after the second act and made a brief speech.

After the last act the audience remained and called him out again.

He appeared without his make-up and entertained them with a few of his stories. He told one that Alba Heywood told him. Alba is not unknown in Paducah. He has appeared here once or twice with his company, known as the Alba and Dewey Heywood company, a musical organization, but since that time, several years ago, he went to Texas and became a millionaire and oil magnate.

At one of his performances in Wauhatchie, Tex., he noticed a man on the front seat with his silk hat clasped in rather precarious security. He had a peculiar sort of leer on his face, and after the first act the hat remained in conspicuous abandonment but the man had disappeared. When the crowd began to return for the second act, the man appeared bareheaded, but the hilarious leer was still with him.

"Wantsh come in" he said.

"You can't do it," replied Mr. Heywood, who was on the door.

"I can't do it (hic)? Well why can't I? Can walk as good as yoush."

"Yes," replied the showman "but you're drunk."

"Shure," retorted the man, "but yoush don' suppose I'd want to come in if I wasn't drunk, do you?"

Another story was of the eggs, teaching the moral that hen fruit, as well as human beings, have their destiny, to fulfill. Manager English brought it from New York last week.

There were two eggs, so the story runs, one a good little egg and the other a bad little egg.

The good little egg was made into an angel cake—but the bad little egg got mashed on an actor.

Another story illustrated one little girl's idea of angels. She was told to go to bed upstairs, but tearfully declared she was afraid.

"Why?" said her mother, "the angels will watch over you."

With this assurance she was finally induced to retire, but pretty soon her mother heard her frantically calling.

"What's the matter, darling?" she asked.

"Oh mamma," she replied, "please hurry up here and make the angels quit biting me!"

Mr. Murphy then gave an amusing recitation mimicking Sir Henry Irving, the English tragedian, which brought down the house. His story telling after the performance was an innovation in Paducah—a two-ringed circus for one price, as he expressed it.

Mr. H. R. Porter, the superintendent of the street car company here, has gone to Cincinnati to visit relatives during the holidays.
